

Google Earth screengrab shows the presence of the primary settlement lagoon which collects water draining from the wider quarry site to the north east. This image is from 2010. The lagoon is present in 2010 and subsequent aerial imagery until present.

Photos from Site (Sept 2019)

View from site haul road looking north at the cliff face overtopping the Primary Settlement Lagoon

Closer view of the same

Generator which powers the pump, which pumps water from the Primary Settlement Lagoon to the Clarifying Lagoons

Beginnings of overflow channel taking overflow (turbid) water from the Primary Settlement Lagoon to the Secondary Settlement Lagoons (looking east)

Beginnings of culverted overflow path to Secondary Settlement Lagoons (looking east south east)

Water runoff from clean site areas to Secondary Settlement Lagoons (looking east)

Surface water runoff from operational site entering the Secondary Settlement Lagoons via culvert beneath the road.

Secondary Settlement Lagoons

Secondary Settlement Lagoons

Clarifying Lagoons

Turbidity meter

Discharge point