Dear Mr. Tapper

The Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2013 (Statutory Instrument No. 675)

Request for checking of OPRA Profile

Each year the Environment regulator requires EPR operators to submit an updated OPRA Profile. Up until 31 March 2013 in Wales this was the Environment Agency, but since 1 April 2013 this has been Natural Resources Wales.

OPRA is an objective risk-screening scheme that we use in our work to regulate operators under the Environmental Permitting Regulations (EPR). The scheme provides a risk profile, and we use this to determine how much of an effort we need to regulate a site based on a range of factors related to their risk, such as where they are located and what their performance has been like in the past. This information is then used to determine the charges each operator needs to pay.

To help with this process we have updated the OPRA spreadsheet (version 3.7) that you submitted last year for your installation into the updated version 3.8 required this year. We now request that you check and return it to us, by 31 January 2014, highlighting any changes you have made.

By you re-submitting the spreadsheet electronically, this helps us to transfer the information directly into our business systems and reduce the potential for errors.

For any queries on OPRA, please contact your site officer in the first instance. Please contact me if you have any further queries, or are unclear on who is your site officer.

Yours sincerely
