This statement does not stop us from taking additional enforcement action if further relevant information comes to light or offences continue.

4. Details of our assessment

On the 28th of January 2023, Natural Resources Wales were made aware that crude sewage was overflowing at Ogwen Cottage. Contact was made with the National Park and the blockage was cleared. This CAR form is being generated to record this incident and the action taken.

It is understood that the cause of the blockage isn't known.

Typically blockages occur due to inappropriate materials such as incontinence pads, feminine hygiene products, fat from kitchens or cutlery etc having been flushed down the toilet. It would be wise to have posters etc at the site to advise the public not to flush such items down the toilet / drains.

If you have any queries about this report, or to discuss completion of any actions, please contact the NRW Officer named above.
