4. Details of our assessment

This CAR form has been updated and reissued with the response from DCWW

Natural Resources Wales was notified of the sample exceedance, taken on the 20th June 2024 at Pen-y-stryt Wastewater Treatment Works.

This is the 1st exceedance for Suspended solids at this site within the last 12-month period and therefore this CAR form is scored as (A) Assessed, and no evidence of non-compliance.

Please provide investigate the cause of the exceedance and any steps you have or will take to resolve the issue and to prevent reoccurrence:

A review was carried out to determine the root cause of the sample exceedance. It was concluded that routine maintenance temporarily increased flows through the treatment process, reducing treatment capacity and causing subsequent solids carryover. This solids carryover elevated the Total Suspended Solids to 61mg/l against a permit limit of 60mg/l.

DCWW's Operational teams routinely maintain the humus tanks by removing any solids build up and recirculating the flow back to the head of the works for further treatment. This ensures that any solids removed during the maintenance task are captured and not discharged to the environment. On this occasion, the recirculation pump operated for too long and this increased the flow and overloaded the single tank. This reduced the tank's treatment capacity and caused a brief period of elevated solids.

To prevent future occurrences, the team has implemented recirculation checks for all upcoming tasks.
