4. Details of our assessment

This Compliance Assessment Report (CARS) is being generated following a solids exceedance at Tregarth sewage works on the 22nd of July 2024. This was self reported by Dwr Cymru as incident reference 2410748.

It's understood that Dwr Cymru operational staff were mobilised to site immediately upon discovery of elevated solids in the discharge by the OSM sampler, and that the turbidity (as a quick field measurement compared to solids) was back to background levels by the time they arrived on site.

It's understood that an investigation including CCTV and dye testing has been carried out since. Relevant questions regarding the build up of sediment in the effluent pipe, the sampler's experience and how much flow was through the works etc have all been raised by Natural Resources Wales. None of these questions or investigations have found a root cause for the exceedance.

Natural Resources Wales have now been informed of the results of the OSM sample. The solids result was 276mg/l as compared to the permit limit of 38mg/l. That is, the result was over 7 times the limit.

It's noted that this is the first solids exceedance at the site within 12 months and that there is no upper tier limit for solids on the permit. As such this result counts as an exceedance within the allowable number of annual exceedances under the look up table procedure, rather than an actual failure, or permit breach.

Please explain what actions you propose to take to prevent further exceedances at the site.

If you have any queries about this report, or to discuss completion of any actions, please contact the NRW Officer named above.
