4. Details of our assessment

Compliance inspection for permit AN0419501 undertaken by Environment Officers Harry Warburton and Hannah Jenkins, accompanied by DCWW operators. The weather at the time was dry.

Aberthaw West STW has recently had its storm permit consolidated with the final effluent permit.

Inlet and storm tank

This site has a mechanically screened inlet with a static screened overflow bypass channel, this was clear at the time of inspection.

Following the inlet the effluent enters a wet well which has a weir once the effluent reaches a certain height, the effluent then enters the storm tank, the EDM MCERTS is located at this point. The storm tank recirculates the effluent during lower inlet flows to be treated.

Primary treatment

Following the inlet, wet well and storm tank are two primary tanks. The effluent is split evenly between the two and sludge settles in these tanks which then goes to the sludge holding tanks, which are emptied weekly. The primary tanks were in good working order.

Secondary treatment

After the primary tanks the effluent is evenly split between two large rotating filter beds. These were providing a good level of distribution over the filter media. Following the filter beds the effluent is evenly split again in to two final tanks, there was no evidence of any solids carry over.

The final effluent sample point is then at the back of the site and well signposted.

The sites logbook was checked and there was a frequent entry for the turbidity reading reaching the seek help point, however there have not been any look up table exceedances for suspended solids for this site, so it appears to be managed.

No actions.
