What the law says

The Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2016.(S.I.2010 No.1154) say -

Regulations 48(1) & (2)

The regulator must exclude information from a public register if it considers that the information may be confidential information, or receives notice that you consider the information to be confidential and you have provided reasons for that view. Except when it has been determined that the information should be included on the register. Note that the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers can give direction as to information which must be included in the public register even if it may be confidential.

Regulation 49(1)

Where the regulator receives information that it considers may be confidential, it must give notice of that view to the person the information is about. This person is known as the information subject. The information subject may within 15 working days give notice consenting or objecting to the inclusion of the information on the register. If an objection is made you must give the reasons for this view.

Regulations 51(1), (2), (3) & (4)

When making a confidentiality determination the regulator must comply with the conditions detailed in this regulation.

Regulation 52(1)

The regulator has 20 working days, or any such longer period that may be agreed with you, to give you notice of its determination. If we fail to give notice within 20 working days (or other agreed period), you can notify us in writing that we are deemed to have determined that the information must be included on the public register. You then have the right of appeal.

Regulation 53(1)

You may give notice of appeal to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers within 15 working days after the regulator has made a determination under regulation 51.

Regulations 55(1) & (2)

Any information that is determined to be confidential remains so for a period of 4 years or any shorter period specified in the decision. You must make a further application at that time, if you believe the information remains confidential information and should be withheld from the public registers.

Information that is not confidential

PAN-029174 is a transfer application and does not contain the information listed in the claim. While an Environmental Management System has been provided in support of the application, it also does not include the information listed within the claim.

The existing permit (and related documents) the application is transferring (EPR/BJ69681Y) is already placed on the public register, and therefore in the public domain.
