1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background

Royal St David's Golf Club is located in Harlech, Gwynedd. The site currently holds a licence to abstract up to 192 m<sup>3</sup> per day from BH1 to irrigate the golf course (Licence No. WA/064/0016/004). The abstraction licence does not meet their current water usage requirements. An additional borehole (BH2) was drilled in 2024, and it is proposed to vary the extant abstraction licence to include the new borehole and increase to total abstraction volume.

BH2 was constructed at National Grid Reference (NGR) SH 5774 3308 and test pumping was undertaken to obtain information to support the application to vary the abstraction licence.

The site location and borehole locations are provided on Drawing 3571/PT/01.

1.2 Report content

This report has been prepared to support the application for the variation of Royal St David's Golf Clubs' abstraction licence. It includes:

- A summary of the geology and hydrogeology
- Construction details of the boreholes
- Test pumping data and analysis.

2 GEOLOGY AND HYDROGEOLOGY

2.1 Geology

BGS Geological mapping indicates that the superficial deposits at the golf course comprise blown sand which form an area of low elevation comprising dunes. The bedrock geology at the site boreholes (BH1 and BH2) is the Llanbedr Formation (interbedded siltstone and mudstone). The Rhinog Formation (sandstone and mudstone) and the Harlech Grits Group (Sandstone, siltstone and mudstone) are indicated in close proximity to the site.

2.2 Boreholes

Borehole 1 (BH1) was drilled in 2019 to a depth of 60 meters below ground level (mgb). Test pumping of BH1 was undertaken in March 2023 to support the extant abstraction licence.

Borehole 2 (BH2) was completed on 3rd May 2024 to a depth of 37.2 meters below ground level (mgb). The borehole logs are provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A1 and a scale comparison with BH1 is provided in Drawing 3571/PT/02.

BH2 was completed entirely within the superficial deposits (Blown Sands). A fine sand was encountered down to 14 mbgl; below this, layers of cobbles were present. Between 20 mbgl and 24 mbgl the strata comprised cobbles and gravels with bands of clay. From 24 mbgl to the base of the borehole at 37.2 mbgl gravels and cobbles with bands of coarse sand were encountered. This differs greatly from BH1, located 75 m to the northeast, which records superficial deposits to 15 mbgl and weathered fractured bedrock to the base of the borehole at 60 mbgl.

Slotted PVC casing was installed from 20 mbgl to 37.2 mbgl. A water strike was recorded at 20 mbgl; however, the strata above this were recorded as wet.

The details for BH2 are provided in Table 3571/PT/T2.

2.3 Water features

Several surface water features have been identified that have the potential to be impacted by the test pumping. Their locations are shown on Drawing 3571/PT/01. The identified water features comprise a network of drainage ditches (W1 to W4) and two ponds (P1 and P2). All of the water features are considered to be in continuity with groundwater and are located within the Morfa Harlech Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI).

3 TESTING PROGRAMME AND DATA COLLECTION

3.1 Testing programme

The pumping test programme was specified in the Natural Resources Wales Consent to Investigate a Groundwater Source (Ref WA/064/0016/0006, 23rd September 2024). It constituted:

- Test 1 - Constant rate testing of BH2 while monitoring BH1
- Test 2 - Constant rate testing of BH1 and BH2 simultaneously while monitoring both boreholes
- The constant rate tests (CRT) are to be undertaken at a maximum pumping rate of 16 m<sup>3</sup>/hr (384 m<sup>3</sup>/day) for a minimum of 24 hours and a maximum of 48 hours
- Monitoring of W1, W2, W3, W4, P1 and P2 at a minimum frequency of hourly during both tests

The sequence of testing that was undertaken is shown in Drawing 3571/PT/03 and Drawing 3571/PT/04.

3.2 Pumping test data collection

Test 1

Pressure transducer dataloggers were installed on 10th June 2025 within all of the surface water features and BH1. The dataloggers in the water features were set to log hourly while the logger in BH1 was set to log every minute. A barologger was set up next to BH1 to record atmospheric pressure. The barologger data was used to correct the water level data for the effects of changes in atmospheric pressure. Only the corrected data is presented within the report. The datalogger within BH1 was vented and therefore does not need correcting for barometric pressure. Water levels were manually measured in BH1 at the start and end of the test. The locations of the dataloggers are shown in Drawing 3571/PT/01. Rest water level data is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A2.

Photographs of the surface water features were taken at the start and end of the tests and are provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A3.

Manual water level measurements were only taken from BH2 as it was not possible to undertake both manual and datalogger measurements in the borehole due to the narrow diameter of the dip tube. Meter readings were taken from BH2 at regular intervals.

Abstraction from BH2 commenced at 09:00 on 11th June 2025 and was maintained for 48 hours. Cessation of pumping and recovery of the borehole commenced at 09:10 on 13th June 2025.

Test 2

For the second test, the pressure transducer dataloggers were reinstalled on 30th June 2025 at the same locations as Test 1.

Photographs of the surface water features were taken at the start and end of the test and are provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A2.

Manual measurements were taken from BH2 at throughout the test. BH1 was monitored using a datalogger, with manual measurements taken at the start and end of the test. Meter readings were undertaken from BH1 and BH2 at regular intervals throughout the test.

Abstraction from both boreholes commenced at 09:00 on 1st July 2025 and was maintained for 48 hours. Both pumps were switched off and recovery commenced at 09:10 on 3rd July 2025.

4 INTERPRETATION

4.1 Test 1 - Abstraction from BH2 only

4.1.1 Constant rate test

BH2

The constant rate test from BH2 commenced at 09:00 on 11th June 2025. Pumping was undertaken for 2 days, finishing at 09:10 on 13th June 2025. The pump produced an average abstraction rate of 5.83 m<sup>3</sup>/hr over the duration of the test. The monitoring data is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A4.

The water level within the abstraction borehole dropped by 1.95 m in the first 30 seconds. The water level continued to drop rapidly for approximately the first 20 minutes, reaching a drawdown of 2.68 m. The rate of decline of the water level subsequently began to gradually decrease, reaching a steady rate of decline by approximately 500 minutes (8 hours) after the commencement of the test. The drawdown at the end of the test was 3.09 m, with no discernible decline occurring.

The data was plotted for analysis on a drawdown vs log-time (semi-log) plot in Drawing 3571/PT/05. Well loss/storage effects are apparent up to approximately 2.5 minutes after the start of the test. After this time the data conforms to a straight line, from which it can be inferred that radial flow to the borehole is occurring.

At approximately 1000 minutes (16 hours) and 2040 minutes (34 hours) the water level increased by up to 2 cm. This is potentially due to groundwater recharge as a result of heavy rain showers that occurred during the test.

The Cooper-Jacob straight line method was used to analyse the results. A transmissivity of 132 m<sup>2</sup>/day was calculated for the superficial deposits.

BH1

The pressure transducer data from BH1 is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A5. A semi-log plot of the data from the constant rate test is shown on Drawing 3571/PT/06

Drawdown began to occur at BH1 2 minutes after the commencement of pumping from BH2. The water level declined at a slowly decreasing rate until approximately 120 minutes (2 Hours) where the water level stabilised at between 0.12 m and 0.13 m of drawdown. It remained at this level until approximated 1825 minutes (30 hours) after the start of pumping. The water level subsequently began to rise until the end of the test pumping, reaching a level of 0.82 mbtc (0.14 m above the starting rest water level). This increase is considered to be due to heavy rainfall. After 60 minutes into the test the water level steps down by approximately 1 cm; it is considered that this is due to an error within the datalogger.

Water Features

Watercourse W1 was dry at the start of the test. While some water had accumulated within the watercourse by the end of the test it was not enough to be registered by the datalogger. The datalogger record shows approximately 0.02 m water +/- 0.007 m, this is considered to be due to the resolution/noise of the logger and drift of the calibration.

The datalogger in W2 failed during the test; therefore, no data is available. Photographs of the watercourse indicate that water was present within it throughout the test.

Watercourses W3 and W4 are both part of the same ditch system. It remained dry for the duration of the test. As with W1, the dataloggers in W3 and W4 are considered to have recorded only noise. The datalogger in W4 recorded a peak of 0.07 m at approximately midnight on 10th June (i.e. before the test started). The datalogger was located downstream of a culvert and this peak therefore may be due to runoff discharging from it, however no rainfall events were recorded by nearby weather stations.

Water was present in both ponds P1 and P2 for the duration of the testing. Prior to the abstraction the water level in both ponds fell by approximately 0.02 m. This is considered to be as a result of evaporation due to the warm dry weather (25 °C). Following commencement of pumping, the water level in both ponds rose by 0.01 m to 0.02 m over a period of 3 to 5 hours, no rain occurred over this period so it is unclear what caused this rise. Water levels subsequently continued to decline due to the dry weather. From approximately 12:00 on 12th June 2025, the water levels began to rise following heavy rain showers that continued until the morning of 13th June 2025.

The pressure transducer data for the surface water features is shown in Drawing 3571/PT/07.

It is considered that the abstraction from BH2 had no discernible impact on the water features.

4.1.2 Recovery

BH2

The recovery test was started at 09:10 on 13th June 2025. The water level rebounded by 2.48 m within the first 30 seconds. The pre-test water level of 1.1 mbtc (i.e. 100% recovery) was reached 15 minutes after the pump was switched off. The water level continued to rise, stabilising at approximately 1.06 mbtc (104% recovery) after approximately 75 minutes. It is considered that the recovery to a higher water level is due to rainfall during the test. The manual data is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A4.

Analysis of the recovery data was undertaken using the Theis Recovery method shown on Drawing 3571/PT/05. The early data (ie at the beginning of the recovery test, where  $t/t'$  is greatest) diverges from a straight line trend due to water filling the borehole. Late data also deviates from a straight line as the water level recovered to a level higher than before the test. The middle data was therefore used for analysis, giving a transmissivity of 87 m<sup>2</sup>/day.

BH1

The monitoring data is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A5. A plot of the data from the recovery test is shown on Drawing 3571/PT/06.

Due to the increase in the water level that occurred due to rainfall during the constant rate test, the water level in BH1 was 0.14 m above the pre-test water level at the end of the test pumping. This subsequently rose by approximately an additional 0.1 m after the pump was turned off. As this took place entirely above the rest water level it was not possible to undertake analysis of aquifer properties.

The water level had reached a steady state approximately 30 minutes after the pump was switched off.

Water Features

W1 and W4 contained a few centimetres of standing water within parts of them at the end of the test. This is considered to be due rainfall runoff. P1 and P2 record a higher water level than before the test, This is considered to be due to rainfall as the increase in water levels started before the pump was switched off. The recovery test therefore had no discernible impact on the surface water features.

4.2 Test 2 – Simultaneous Abstraction from BH1 and BH2

4.2.1 Constant rate test

BH2

Abstraction from both BH1 and BH2 commenced at 09:00 on 1st July 2025. Pumping from both boreholes was undertaken for 2 days, finishing at 09:10 on 3rd July 2025. The pump in BH2 produced an average abstraction rate of 5.82 m<sup>3</sup>/hr over the period of the test. The monitoring data is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A6.

The water level declined by approximately 3.5 m within the first hour, with the rate of decline subsequently decreasing. At the end of the test a maximum drawdown of 4.01 m was achieved, with a rate of decline of 0.01 m every 3 hours. This is an additional 0.9 m drawdown compared to when the BH2 was pumped on its own.

The data was plotted on a drawdown vs log-time plot. The plot is shown on Drawing 3571/PT/08. Well storage effects are apparent up to approximately 2.5 minutes after the start of the test, the data then follow a straight line relationship for the remainder of the test. A slight deviation from the straight line occurs around 400 minutes (6.6 hours), however it is not clear if this is due to measurement error. The conformance to a straight line indicates that radial flow occurs to the borehole.

As pumping was being undertaken at both boreholes it was not possible to determine aquifer properties.

BH1

Abstraction from BH1 commenced simultaneously with BH2. The pump in BH1 produced an average abstraction rate of 6.06 m<sup>3</sup>/hr over the period of the test. The monitoring data is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A7.

Water levels decreased rapidly for the first 15 minutes of the test, reaching a drawdown of approximately 8.8 m. The rate of lowering subsequently began to decline, reaching a maximum drawdown of 10.7 m. This is 0.8 m less drawdown than when BH1 was pumped on its own in March 2023 for the extant licence. It is unclear why less drawdown occurred as the rest water level and amount of rainfall was also higher in March 2023.

The data was plotted on a drawdown vs log-time plot in Drawing 3571/PT/09. Well storage effects are apparent up to approximately 6 minutes after the start of the test. An early and a late straight-line trend are present within the data. The early trend is considered to represent radial flow within the fractured bedrock. The late trend has a lower gradient, indicating that less drawdown occurred than is predicted within an aquifer where radial flow is occurring. This implies that recharge to the borehole is occurring, likely due to leakage from the superficial deposits. These two trends are also present within the data from the test pumping of BH1 undertaken in March 2023.

Water Features

Watercourse W1 was dry at the beginning of pumping, with the soil at the base appearing moist at the end of the test. The pressures registered by the datalogger are considered to be due to error and calibration drift, as discussed in Section 4.1.1. Therefore it is considered that the watercourse was dry throughout the test.

W2 contained water throughout the testing. Before the test the depth of water was 0.215 m. This gradually declined to 0.210 m until midnight on 2nd July 2025, after which the decline was more rapid, reaching a final depth of 0.20 m at the time the datalogger was removed. It is considered that the changes in water level are due to the weather (warm with occasional rain showers) as the timing of the changes does not correlate with the testing.

W3 remained dry throughout the test. W4 also appears to have remained dry during the test, however an increase in pressure equivalent to approximately 0.02 m of water was recorded throughout the night of 2nd July 2025. The data logger was located immediately downstream of a culvert, the peak may therefore be due to runoff through the culvert.

Ponds P1 and P2 contained water throughout the test. Both ponds recorded a decline in water levels following the installation of the data loggers, with an increase in the rate of decline starting in the evening of 2nd July 2025. This trend is similar to that recorded in W2. The water level in P1 declined by approximately 0.03 m and P2 declined by approximately 0.025 m. The timings of the decline do not correlate with the test pumping, therefore it is considered to be due to the warm weather that persisted during the test.

The data from the dataloggers is provided on Drawing 3571/PT/10 and a photographic record is provided in Appendix 3571/PT/A3.

4.2.2 Recovery

BH2

The recovery test started at 09:10 on 3rd July 2025. The water level recovered by 3.12 m within the first 30 seconds. After 15 minutes the water level had risen by 3.75 m (94 % recovery). The recovery test stopped at 11:45 with a residual drawdown of 0.1 m (99% recovery). The data is shown in Drawing 3517/PT/08.

BH1

The water level in BH1 recovered by 6.19 m within the first 2 minutes of the pump being switched off. The borehole reached 95% recovery (an increase of 10.14 m) after 60 minutes of the pump being switched off. At the end of monitoring at 12:35 the water level had risen to 0.21 m above the rest water level (102% recovery). The data is shown in Drawing 3571/PT/09.

Water Features

Watercourses W1, W3 and W4 remained dry throughout the recovery test.

The water levels in watercourse W2 and ponds P1 and P2 continued to decline until the end of the monitoring. It is considered that the test pumping has had no impact on these water features.

4.3 Conceptual understanding

The bedrock in BH1 was encountered at 15 mbgl, while in BH2, situated 75 m to southwest, the bedrock was not encountered within the 37.5 m deep borehole. This difference in depth is considered likely to be due to a fault being present between the boreholes, with the superficial deposits accumulated against the fault plane.

The bedrock into which BH1 is drilled is fractured such that the flow to the borehole approximates to radial flow. The fracturing facilitates hydraulic continuity with the superficial deposits, which results in leakage to the borehole.

The superficial deposits represent an unconfined aquifer, with the flow to BH2 being radial. Abstraction from BH2 causes a slight drawdown of water levels within BH1.

The surface water features are groundwater supported.

Groundwater levels respond rapidly to rainfall events and the increases are significant enough to be identifiable even when pumping.

The pumping had no discernible impact on the surface water features. Changes of the surface water feature water levels can be attributed to evaporation and rainfall. It is considered that W1, W3 and W4 were dry due to the extended period of dry weather prior to the test. Due to their proximity, as P1 and P2 were not impacted by the abstraction it can be inferred that water levels within W3 and W4 would also not be impacted.

W1 is located approximately 7 m from BH1 and 25 m from BH2. The watercourse was dry during both tests, however it appears to have received runoff following the rainfall events. The depth of water within the watercourse can reach up to approximately 1 m deep. Whilst the watercourse is considered to be in hydraulic continuity with groundwater, the water level within the ditch appears to primarily be influenced by the amount of rainfall.

5 SUMMARY AND CONCLUSIONS

Testing of a new borehole (BH2) at Royal St David Golf Club was undertaken to understand the impacts of increasing the abstraction at the site.

Testing of the borehole comprised a 3 day constant rate test with monitoring at BH1 and nearby surface water features. Abstraction was undertaken at a rate of 5.83 m<sup>3</sup>/hr, and a maximum drawdown of 3.09 m was achieved. The water level recovered fully approximately 75 minutes after the pump was switched off.

The transmissivity of the superficial deposits was calculated as being between 87 m<sup>2</sup>/day and 132 m<sup>2</sup>/day.

A second test was undertaken which comprised a 3 day constant rate test from both BH1 and BH2, while measuring the same surface water features. The abstraction from BH2 was maintained at 5.82 m<sup>3</sup>/hr and achieved a maximum drawdown of 4.01 m. The abstraction rate from BH1 was 6.06 m<sup>3</sup>/hr and the maximum drawdown was 10.7 m. The water levels in BH1 and BH2 fully recovered after 126 minutes and 155 minutes, respectively.

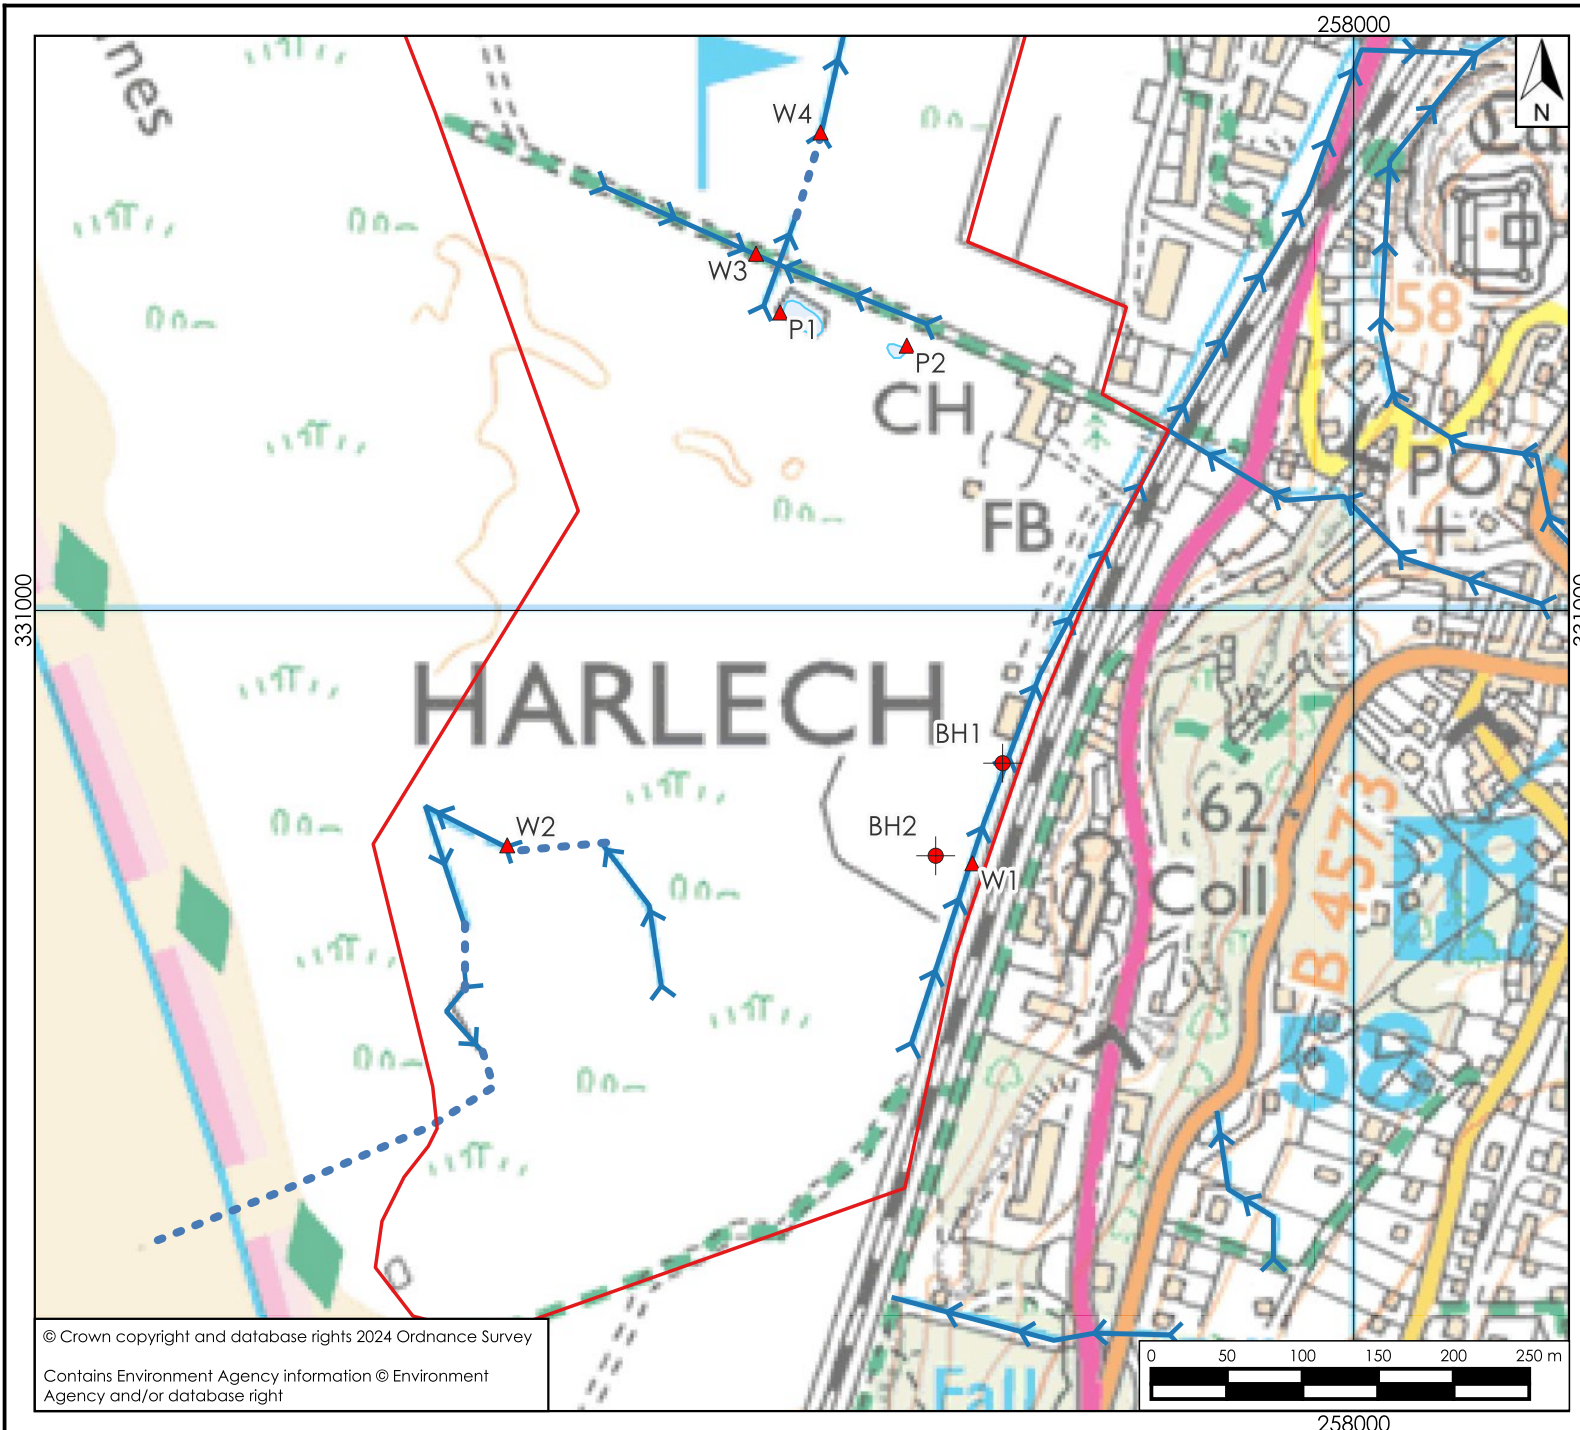

The bedrock is fractured such that the flow to BH1 approximates to radial flow. The fracturing also facilitates leakage from the superficial deposits. The superficial deposits in which BH2 is constructed comprise an unconfined aquifer. The thicker superficial deposits at the location of BH2 are considered to be due to the deposition of sediment against a fault plane located between the two boreholes.

The water level in BH1 responded rapidly to rain showers that occurred during the testing, with the water level increasing by up to 0.3 m during the first test (abstraction from BH2 only). Interaction between the two boreholes occurs with the additional drawdown caused by pumping both boreholes simultaneously being approximately 1 m.

The surface water features in the area are considered to be groundwater supported, and receive runoff from the surrounding land. Some of the watercourses were dry during the test due to the prolonged antecedent dry weather. The watercourse and ponds that did contain water were not impacted by the pumping and water levels only changed by small amounts in response to evaporation and rainfall.

It is considered that both boreholes abstracting simultaneously at 6.06 m<sup>3</sup>/hr for BH1 and 5.83 m<sup>3</sup>/hr for BH2 (11.89 m<sup>3</sup>/hr total) would not result in additional impact to the water environment.
