What the law says

If we need further information to determine a duly-made application, we may serve a notice on the applicant specifying the further information required and the period within which it must be provided.

If the applicant does not provide further information in accordance with that notice, we may serve a further notice on the applicant stating that the application is deemed to be withdrawn.

If an application is deemed to be withdrawn, the applicant is not entitled to the return of the application fee.

The applicant has the right to appeal against deemed withdrawal.
